Kissinger to join industry leaders, government officials and renowned economists scheduled to address the world’s premier energy conference March 7-11 in Houston

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (January 26, 2011) – Former U.S. Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger will join the list of distinguished speakers at CERAWeek 2011, March 7-11 at the Hilton Americas – Houston. Kissinger will deliver a keynote address Thursday, March 10 at 7:00pm CT.

A leader in the formation of the modern international energy system, Kissinger was a founder of the International Energy Agency in 1974. His address at CERAWeek will kick off a special focus on the energy agenda for the next 30 years, looking at the future of the global international system and the implications for the energy industry.

CERAWeek, now in its 30th year, is recognized as a leading forum offering insight into the energy future. Chaired by IHS Cambridge Energy Research Associates (IHS CERA) Chairman and Pulitzer Prize-winning author of The Prize, Daniel Yergin, CERAWeek 2011 Leading the Way: Energy Strategies for a World of Change will convene an international group of industry, policy and financial leaders—along with leading researchers from IHS CERA— to explore the implications for strategies and investment in an era of persistent change.
